Major production and employment trends 1910-1930

As early as 1917 Jackson had become known as "The Auto Parts Town" even though automobile production was carried on in the city until 1924.²⁸ Undoubtedly, this was due to the Chamber of Commerce's efforts to attract firms which could support auto production in Jackson and other cities via the railroads but not require the vast amounts of capital the automobile producers required. By the mid-Twenties nearly half of Jackson's manufacturing workers were engaged in activities related to auto-parts production.²⁹ Non-automotive production, especially farm and garden tools, undergarments, coupled with railroad, prison, and office employment, however, gave the city a diversified employment base.

The city's diversified employment was largely responsible for providing a moderate stability to the community during the early period of the depression. Not-switches for G. M. cars. Employment cut-backs started in January and reached a high on May 18, when 1,726 hourly workers were laid off and 61 salaried supervisors were reduced to hourly scales. This lay-off reached men with seniority dating back to May 1952, and cut employment to 13,499.

The guide lamp division of GM, the second largest Anderson employer with more than 6,000 workers last year, is now down to 4,246. The most recent layoff occurred May 22, when 200 got their notices.

LAYOFFS IN MUNCIE

In nearby Muncie, also a big auto parts town, the principal employer is the Warner gear division of Borg-Warner Corp., which makes automatic transmissions for Ford and Studebaker. About 1,600 employees at this plant are understood to have been cut loose since the first of the year and total unemployment is estimated at 5,400, compared to 2,500 at this time last year.

Although demand for replacement tires is running at a record rate of 53 million a year, new-car tire shipments have been running 22 percent below last year and there is a bulging inventory of 17,800,000 tires ready to be fastened onto new cars when and if they are built, compared to a stockpile of only 12,197,000 new-car tires a year ago.

"Our main worry at the moment is the high inventory of passenger-car tires," says Robert S. Wilson, executive vice president of Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. Mr. Wilson concedes that production will have to be cut in the third quarter. "But the situation is by no means alarming," he insists.

The Work of the United States Information Agency

EXTENSION OF REMARKS OF HON. PAUL H. DOUGLAS OF ILLINOIS

IN THE SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES
Tuesday, May 29, 1956

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the Appendix of the Record a statement I have prepared indicating the importance of the work of the United States Information Agency in carrying on the fight for freedom in the world today.

There being no objection, the statement was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

STATEMENT BY SENATOR DOUGLAS

Last year I offered an amendment in the Senate to the Interstate Oil Compact when it was before the Senate. Article V of the compact states:

"It is not the purpose of this compact to authorize the States joining herein to limit the production of oil or gas for the purpose of stabilizing or fixing the price thereof, or to create or perpetuate monopoly, or to promote regimentation, but is limited to the purpose of conserving oil and gas and preventing the avoidable waste thereof within reasonable limitations."

My amendment to the Interstate Oil Compact merely asked that the Justice Department make a study and annual report to the Congress as to whether or not the clear purpose of the compact, as stated by the compact States themselves in article V was being carried out.

The reason for my amendment was simple. The Constitution of the United States says: "No State shall, without the consent of Congress . . . enter into any agreement or compact with another State."

When the Justice Department submitted its request this year, it asked for $783,090 and for 147 additional positions to carry out the purposes of my amendment. The House committee passed this amount. The Senate committee, however, recognized that this was an absurd request and that the Justice Department had no real grounds, either in the legislative intent or the job to be done, to justify such a request. As it was my amendment to the oil compact, and as my remarks in the Senate make up the only substantive legislative record, I want to say that I concur with the committee's feeling. I believe the Justice Department's request was an attempt to reduce the real purpose of my amendment to absurdity and to kill any effort to carry out the reasonable intent of the amendment.

I wrote to Senator JOHNSON to this effect on May 18, but I believe that the bill had been marked up before he or his committee had an opportunity to consider my letter.

The committee cut the amount from $783,090 to $25,000. I believe that if the Department really carries out the intent of Congress and goes about this task in a reasonable way, that the $25,000 granted by the committee is quite adequate for the job. This amount is enough to insure that the Justice Department can have no excuse whatsoever to get on with their clear duty and responsibility under the law and under the clear language and intent of my amendment to the oil compact.

The original Justice Department request was ridiculous. When pressed before the Senate committee to support the amount, they fell back on the legislative intent of Congress. I believe I know as much about that as anyone else, and I can say that there certainly is nothing in the history of the amendment in the Senate to justify $783,090.

It is a clear principle of Government, that the Congress and the legislative branch should be able to secure, as a matter of right, that the spirit of the acts of the executive are suffused with the clear purposes and intents of the Congress. In this case

House committee last year and which I quote in my letter to Senator JOHNSON be included in the Record at this point.

This latter insertion especially shows very clearly that from the beginning the Justice Department has been less than reasonable in their attitude toward this amendment.

I am happy that the Senate committee saw through their request and has acted as it has. Further, I want to say that I expect, and I believe the Congress has a right to expect, that the Justice Department get on with its job and stop trying to kill or make ridiculous the amendment to the oil compact. The first report, if the Justice Department has done its job, should be ready very soon.

MAY 18, 1956.

The Honorable LYNDON B. JOHNSON,
Chairman, Subcommittee on Justice Department Appropriations, Senate Office Building, Washington, D. C.

DEAR SENATOR JOHNSON: My attention has been called to the request of the Department of Justice for $700,000 to carry out the legislative intent of the amendment to the Interstate Oil Compact which I introduced and which was carried in the Senate during the last session. I understand that the Justice Department contemplates hiring something like 110 investigators, opening 3 new offices, and increasing the Antitrust Division by something like 25 percent in order to carry out the legislative intent of my amendment.

May I say that this request by the Justice Department is absurd. I can only think it was done in an attempt to reduce the real purpose of my amendment to absurdity and to kill any effort to carry out the reasonable intent of the amendment. I am convinced that a staff of 2 to 4 competent economists, 1 to 2 lawyers, and perhaps 1 to 2 investigators, at most, would be adequate to carry out the legislative intent of my amendment. I am at a loss to find anything in the legislative record of my amendment from which the Department could possibly request the sum of money and the new staff it has asked for. As it was my amendment, and as my statement was the only statement of sub-

Weather Report

Extended ; RICHMOND (AP) - The National Weather Service's extended forecast for Virginia, Sunday through Tuesday: v Mostly sunny and, cool Sunday. Highs tipper 40s to mid-50s. Lows in the 30s. Mostly sunny Monday. Highs upper 5.0s and lower 60s. ; Lows in the 30s. Partly sunny and milder Tuesday. Highs mid-60s to lower 70s. Lows mid-40s to lower 50s. National forecast 'I hinh Umw that the three police departments are working well together and they don't want to do anything to hinder that relationship.

Fariss said he felt the study should be done because "sometimes we wait until its broken to fix it. This type of study tells us where we are at this time."

Pulaski also agreed to give Pulaski County 10,000 of its new brochures, which are expected to be printed within the next couple of weeks.

The brochure, done by Robert Henderson, of Pulaski, also includes information about Pulaski County. The county plans to distribute the brochures through the Industrial Development Authority and the Pulaski County Chamber of Commerce.

Authorities reported that Tommy Wayne Dean of Pulaski said he was reloading a gun at the home of Richard Martin in the Boone Furnace area at 3:30 a.m. today when the gun accidentally discharged.

He was hospitalized for a wound to his right thigh.

The Pulaski Fire Department continues to warn residents about open air burning.

The department responded to a call to an area behind Parts Town on Robinson Tract Road around 7 p.m. Thursday.

People were trying to clear off some property when the fire spread and burned about 2.5 acres before being brought under control.

Men and equipment returned to the station at 9 p.m.

Harmon, I don't need to hear these things."

Mullis wasn't in court and messages left on his home answering machine were not returned late Thursday.

The sparring was part of a hearing in which Simpson's attorneys argued they had the right to resurrect a challenge of critical DNA evidence.

They also asked Ito to stop prosecutors from waging personal attacks on witnesses like Mullis. Ito said he would rule Monday.

The hearing set the stage for the next phase of the trial, which could begin as early as today with testimony from police technicians who collected blood and other evidence from Simpson's house and Bronco and the crime scene.

Simpson, 47, is charged with

He has taught at the Advocacy Institute almost annually since 1980 and he has been a part of the evaclude: the computer assisted instruction plan which will cost some $500,000 each of the next three school years; parking lot resurfacing at PCHS ($250,000) and replacing the PCHS Vocational School roof ($200,000); audio visual equipment and system work ($125,000); removal and replacement of underground storage tanks ($156,000); the administrative computer network and system ($110,000); asbestos removal ($332,000); handicapped facilities ($275,000); structural repair at Northwood ($70,000) and parking lot resurfacing at Critzer ($130,000). Included in the plan is the computer assisted instructional proposal that would cost some $1.5 million to implement. This includes the purchase of some 250 computer terminals for all the county's schools, as well as operating costs. This is in addition to the existing computer commitments at PCHS and Riverlawn.

Saturday a week ago, Fairlawn's Kemvia Adams had never been on a race track with other racers, but she finished eight in a field of 23. This is riot a foot race but a car race held at the Fraijkin County Speedway. Ms. Adams is the only woman driver in her class, which is the family car division. "My goal was just to finish" the 28-year-old graduate of New River Community College said. "My only fear is Y is catching on fireburning up... that's the biggy", Adams said.

"I thought it would be neat to race, so the two began plans for it.

The two have talked with other drivers to learn more about the sport.

The softspoken Ms. Adams said the other drivers were "willing to help and gave me pointers" and they were "real nice" to her. Before the race one of her worries was what the male drivers would think of her.

Although Crouch is the co-driver, he said "I would rather put one together than drive it" so he said for now he was going to leave the driving to Kemvia, especially since she is in the limelight.

As well as having a female driver, this race car has another unique concept. The pit crew is made up of students in the automotive classes at NRCC, under the direction of Allen Crouch.

Crouch said the class members have formed an extra-curricular club called the NRCC Racing Crew to work on the car and travel to the races as the pitcrew. This extra work has given the students more Sponsors acquired by Adams and Crouch have helped with the expenses of the car. However, Crouch says the couple has put a great deal of their own money into the car.

To run the car in a race, takes about $100 a race, Adams added.

Sponsors for the racers include: Harvey Chevrolet, Star City Auto Parts, Charles Beller, attorney and Robert Lowman, for whom Adams works as a secretary in his law office; Parts Town, Corner Beauty Shop, Valley Auto Care Center, Coop. Inc., Dan's Garage, Dublin Auto, PFS, Inc., Gilbert's and the NRCC Automotive, Welding, and Machine Shop classes.

Adams said during the race "hearing the cheering really helped". In her division, the cars travel on the average of 60 to 65 miles per hour.

"My only fear is catching on fire-burning up... that's the biggy", Adams said.

Lee Myers of the Bullbrook sec- tion of Bland County was extra- dicted from London, Kentucky where he fled following the May 28 brutal killings. Ralph Lester of Pearisburg and Dale Russell Lambert of Bland were both shot and then set on fire. Lester's body was found in the charred ruins of a Giles County home, while Lambert's remains were discovered in the Jefferson National Forest. Myers is charged with two counts of murder, the use of a firearm in the commission of a felony, and with auto larceny. Myers is being held in lieu of $260,000 bond in the Giles County Jail in Pearisburg.

Dunc Quicke defeated Robert Wulff in Ward B. Wulff later proclaimed a different kind of victory, erecting a "Yard of the Week" sign on his South Main lawn.

What's my Top 10?

Not the same as yours or anybody else's. That's what makes this so much fun!

1) Bone Dry. The worst drought in more than 50 years leaves the Fort Pickett dam dry for several days and intensifies water talks between Blackstone and Crewe. Strangely enough, 2002 ends with three above-average months of rainfall, and the drought becomes a distant memory. But Crewe can't forget, and you can't blame em. The colorful railroad town comes within 12 days of running out of drinking water. Crewe Mayor Whip Wilson utters the "a-word" in public, revealing that he still longs for a countywide water authority.

Men of Honor

are remembered by many. State and Blackstone Police say they conclude that Ms. Jonas was setting fire to the store and making a larceny when she was burned.

4) The Spill. One of the biggest unsolved mysteries of 2002 is, who opened the valve on that tar trailer at Nottoway Falls, causing 5,700 gallons of petroleum to flow downstream, and our local version of Valdez? The week of July 4th is always hot and sticky, but nowhere was it stickier in 2002 than at The Falls. Victoria firefighters and other local departments, along with the state DEQ, respond quickly and contain what could have been a major environmental disaster in these parts.

5) Lance Leaveth. He took the band program from rags to riches. Heck, he even took em to Paris, France for December 31, 1999. Then M. Lance Britt leaves for greener pastures, and Nottoway High School's award-winning band program just isn't the same. Stories beginning withoug, except a tough sludge ordinance that many say won't withstand a court challenge. Perhaps we'll see in 2003.

8) Judging Amy. Blackstone Primary teacher Amy Whitus challenges a school seminar speaker, who says many white teachers aren't "culturally sensitive" to today's minority students. Ms. Whitus is brow-beaten behind the scenes and holds her ground. Waymond Mitchell of the NAAACP publicly voices "concerns." School Supt. Dr. Gwen Edwards says the developments aren't newsworthy.

9) Murder in Blackstone. Only the third murder in town limits, since 1990, occurs in August on East Broad Street. The murder victim is Hispanic. He is remembered as a hardworker who wouldn't harm anyone. Three local men are arrested, and one remains charged with capital murder. He is innocent until proven guilty. Will a Nottoway County jury recommend the death penalty in 2003?

10) Bush v. Ward. "He said, she

A Q & A session with Frank Beamer

Q. What goals have you set for the Virginia Tech football program? A. I think at his point our goal is to be representative in a positive fashion, to play each week with intensity and enthusiasm, to give our very best effort on each and every play. Then after that, the record will have to take care of itself. We are going into a new era that is different from any other in Blacksburg. If you look at the schedule for this text four years, we've made a commitment to play together opponents on a weekly basis. Not only is the schedule tough this year, but look at the way it is arranged with four games away from home at the end of the season.

Q. After going through spring practice, what do you consider to be the strengths of this Tech team?

A. The number one thing we've got going for us is the type of men who are on the football team. They have character and are hardworking, tough people who want very much to be successful. I really believe that is our biggest plus. In order to be successful with the type of schedule that we face we're going to have to stay healthy. We have a number of positions where we have good talent but there is a shortage of depth at most of them. We don't have an open date on our schedule and that makes it tough on us. When we do get some injuries there will be no break which will enable us to get those players healthy.

Q. What are the team's weaknesses?

A. We have a lack of experience at the fullback position. There are some good players there but they just haven't seen playing time. We also have a lack of experience at our wide-out positions. David Everett is doing some of the things he did last year, but he's a wide-out now instead of a slot back. The one wide receiver, who played last year (Donald Wayne Stull) is gone. Also, we must develop backup people in the defensive line. We didn't make as much progress in that regard in spring practice as I had hoped. I think ful. But everyone has to understand that we are going to be playing at a different level in the future with tougher schedules.

Q. Tech proved it can win at a big-time level in the New Peach Bowl game last season. How far can the program advance?

A. There is great potential at Virginia Tech. There are several things that lend themselves to doing well. First, this is an excellent academic school. That's a product we will end to a big, big plus. Also, we have excellent facilities. Third, football in the

The South Australian Government Gazette from 1975 includes references like "Part town acre 358" and "Part town acre 671," indicating portions of land within a town acre.

www8.austlii.edu.au+1austlii.edu.au+1

Similarly, the Castlemaine Architectural and Historical Study from 1981 mentions "Part Town of Castlemaine" in survey plans dated 1852 and 1857, reflecting the use of "part town" in historical land surveys.

part town

<https://bizstanding.com/p/parts+town+waitsfield-148659409#:~:text=Status%3Ainactive>

<https://fisherautoparts.com/about.aspx>

Key Differences:

Vermont-Based "Parts Town" (1980s–1990s)

Founded by Wendon ("Wyndon") Bailey in 1987 in Waitsfield, Vermont.

Connected to the Bailey Brothers Auto Parts store in Barre, VT.

Operated as an auto parts retailer and wholesaler, selling new aftermarket car parts, tools, and automotive supplies.

Was later acquired by Fisher Auto Parts in the late 1990s, with the name being phased out.

Found in Vermont business directories, high school yearbooks, and local newspapers.

Pulaski County, Virginia "Parts Town Auto Salvage" (1980s–1990s)

Owned by Rodney Phillips & Bob Ledford (first documented in 1982).

Focused on used and salvaged auto parts rather than new parts.

Mentioned in Virginia newspapers (e.g., Southwest Times) as part of auto salvage contracts.

Continued operating in the 1990s but had no known acquisition by a larger company.

The name "Parts Town" in the 1980s may have been popular for several reasons:

1. Automotive Boom & Aftermarket Parts Demand

The 1980s saw significant growth in the automotive industry, with more vehicles on the road than ever before.

The rise of aftermarket auto parts and do-it-yourself (DIY) car repairs led to a surge in auto parts stores.

Businesses likely used names like "Parts Town" to signal they were a one-stop shop for car owners needing replacement parts.

2. Common Naming Trend for Auto & Hardware Businesses

The 1970s and 1980s had a trend of straightforward business names, especially in retail.

Names like AutoZone (founded 1979), Pep Boys (expanding rapidly in the 80s), and Parts Town were simple, easy to remember, and descriptive.

“Parts Town” could have implied a large inventory, attracting customers who needed a variety of parts.

3. Small Business Branding in the 1980s

Many small, independent auto parts stores mimicked large chains but used regional branding.

A business name like Parts Town suggested community focus, reinforcing that it was "the go-to place" for parts in that town.

4. Expansion of Industrial & Machinery Repair Markets

Beyond automotive, the 1980s saw growth in industrial machinery repair, HVAC, and appliance repair.

Businesses supplying parts to factories, workshops, and repair shops may have also adopted the name Parts Town to show they were a centralized source for parts.

5. Coincidental or Regional Branding

It is possible that multiple independent businesses across the U.S. used "Parts Town" without direct connections to each other.

A company in Virginia (Bob Ledford & Rodney Phillips’ Parts Town) and the modern restaurant equipment supplier (founded in Illinois in 1987) could have used the name separately, with no relation.

Jackson, Michigan was famously known as "the Auto Parts Town" in the early 20th century, particularly by 1917. This was due to its role as a major hub for automotive parts manufacturing during the rise of the automobile industry.

Explanation:

Jackson, Michigan - "Auto Parts Town" (1917)

By 1917, Jackson had become an industrial center for automobile parts production.

Several automotive parts suppliers and tool manufacturers operated in the area, supporting Detroit's growing auto industry.

The historical "Auto Parts Town" reference is more tied to Jackson, Michigan and would not immediately show up in searches for "Parts Town" alone.
